

The Knights Templar Inner Circle Recovers the Ark of the Covenant

The secret of a young Scot's awakening by the Stone from the Ark of the Covenant quickly spread, but only to select family members. One of the young Scot's cousins, upon hearing of the DNA activation by the Stone from the Covenant, asked if the young Scot would visit the French side of his family, so he could hear about this wondrous experience in person, and discuss the information.

And so it was that the mystical young Scot went to visit his equally mystical cousin in France, the man who became known as St. Bernard of Clairvaux, or Bernard de Clairvaux. Upon hearing more information about the activation by the Stone from the Ark of the Covenant and that the "downloaded information" from the Stone, included the location of the buried Ark of the Covenant, other French and Flemish family members were brought into the discussion.

So began the original Inner Circle of the Knights Templar, comprised of Flemish, French and Scottish family members of the young Scot.

As more family members joined the group from various parts of Europe, information about their secret gatherings began to leak out. Then in 1114, the Bishop of Chartres began talking openly about the Knights Templar. Thus, one of the Inner Circle, Hugues de Payens, (later to become the First Grand Master of the Knights Templar), in 1115, gave a large section of land to St. Bernard of Clairvaux on which to build a Cistercian monastery.

The monastery enabled the Inner Circle to meet privately and secretly on a regular basis. In this manner, the Inner Circle of the Knights Templar and the Cistercian monks formed a secret spiritual alliance, based upon the teachings/techniques of The True Jesus, Moses and others, that lasted many years. Since 1128, in just 25 years, 300 new abbeys were built. The Cistercian monastery became the center of the Inner Circle, for planning the recovery of the Ark of the Covenant, and later, for the translation of the priceless treasures from the Ark.

Once plans were completed for the secret removal and transportation of the Ark to the monastery, the official history of the Knights Templar began in Jerusalem. Family members went to Jerusalem in 1118 and began excavations of the Ark of the Covenant and its priceless treasures. And so it was that the Ark of the Covenant was excavated by the Knights Templar, under the direction of the young Scot with his family members.

The Knights Templar, like many ancient spiritual organizations, was comprised of levels. There were 3 main levels, or circles, within the Knights Templar in the 12th and 13th centuries. These levels and circles did change as a result of October 13, 1307, and within a few hundred years, only the Inner Circle remained.

1. The historically known Knights Templar, with their Grand Masters, where Senior Knights Templar taught certain spiritual techniques and wisdom to all Knights Templar.
2. Certain advanced members of the Priory De Scion secretly taught Senior Knights Templar at the request of the Inner Circle. The advanced members of the Priory of Scion were also known for their accomplishments in various fields of endeavor, but they all had one thing in common. Each one was a "Teacher/Trainer" of Senior Knights Templar, and all had been personally taught secret wisdom from the Ark by one or more members of the Inner Circle of the Knights Templar.
3. The previously unknown Inner Circle of the Knights Templar. The Inner Circle consisted of people both known and unknown in the history books of western civilization.

The Inner Circle of the Knights Templar, in the beginning, consisted of the Scot, together with his Flemish, French and Scottish family members, like St. Bernard of Clairvaux, Hugues de Payens and Hugues de Champagne.

And so it was in 1128 AD, protected by the 9 publicly known Knights Templar, that the recovered Ark of the Covenant was secretly moved from Jerusalem into France.

The priceless treasure of the Ark of the Covenant is not earthly treasure, or any form of monetary wealth. They were the wisdom and powerful spiritual techniques from Jesus, Moses, Akhnaten and others, along with the truth about the entire history of humanity.

The young Scot was able to work within the heightened electro-magnetic energies of the Ark and the Stones of the Covenant because of his DNA purity and his daily usage of the spiritual techniques, which he had received during the Stone of the Covenant DNA activation, as a child.

Thus, the young Scot was able to safely work within the heightened energies of the Ark. Others who did not have DNA purity and did not perform daily activations of their own Spirit, or Light Body's heightened electro-magnetic energy fields could not work within the higher level electro-magnetic energies emanating from the Ark, without encountering problems in their physical bodies. Only those with pure DNA, who work daily with the high electro-magnetic energies, can physically withstand the highly charged energies that emanated from the Ark and the Stones of the Covenant.

In order to help his cousin, Bernard, and others, understand the priceless spiritual treasures of the Ark, the young Scot removed the Stones of the Covenant, (for study only), one Stone at time. When the study of the symbols on one Stone was completed by himself, Bernard and/or other family members, the Scot would return the Stone. The Scot knew, from his DNA activation that it was necessary to always maintain the energetic balance of the Ark. Thus the Stone, which Tamar and Jeremiah originally took with them to Ireland/Scotland, was used to temporarily replace each Stone, as the other Stones, one by one were taken out of the Ark for study.

Later, the Stones and Ark were moved from France to Scotland. Thus, when French troops and papal mercenaries attacked the Knights Templar French headquarters in the middle of that fateful Friday the 13th night, they did not find the Ark or any of its priceless treasure.

(The Ark and Stones of the Covenant, along with the Inner Circle of the Knights Templar were in Scotland that Friday the 13th night in October 1307. And so it was that from Friday, October 13, 1307 into the present day, Friday the 13th has been, and is, considered to be an unlucky day.)

Knights Templar Present Jesus' Truths and Build Chartres Cathedral

The Inner Circle of the Knights Templar spent several years in planning the Ark's excavation, recovery and return to the Cistercian monastery of St. Bernard.

When Jesus reburied the Ark, he placed inside documents of his own techniques and teachings, along with the Stones and the documents he had found originally in the Ark of the Covenant. Jesus also buried other documents that would describe, in symbolic language, to a descendant of his, or a pure one of the Davidic Lineage, who had awoken, the locations to other sacred documents and artifacts buried in Jerusalem and Palestine.

Thus, it took years of excavating by the Inner Circle of the Knights Templar to locate and recover all of the buried documents and artifacts. During their time in Palestine, the Scot continued to translate the symbols on the Stones and documents from the Ark.

Copies of translated documents were sent to Bernard of Clairvaux and other family members of the Inner Circle, residing at the monastery. Excitement about newly found documents and information grew each month. In 1125, one well known member of the Inner Circle, Hugues de Champagne, left his wife, children and lands, the size of a kingdom, to join family members in Jerusalem. The arrival of Hugues de Champagne and other family members of the Inner Circle enabled the excavations throughout Palestine to be completed in 1127.

The Inner Circle of the Knights Templar who were in Palestine, then secretly gathered all of the widespread documents and artifacts from throughout the Middle East, together into one location, within their Jerusalem headquarters. Then, in 1128, the Scot and other members of the Knights Templar's Inner Circle returned to France with the Ark and Stones of the Covenant, together with many documents and artifacts.

Bernard of Clairvaux and other family members of the Inner Circle who had remained behind at the monastery, had been quite busy during the excavations. They had been translating documents and preparing a presentation for Rome, over the years, about the magnificent wisdom and information which the Knights Templar Inner Circle had recovered from the Ark of the Covenant.

Their presentation was carefully and skillfully planned over the years. And so it was that a well-planned presentation, releasing certain information and giving a few artifacts to Rome, was made to the French papal ambassador of Pope Honorius II in 1128. This public presentation created a reaction that would be felt by all of Europe and the western world for centuries.

The presentation was made to a special gathering of influential people at the Council of Troyes in 1128. Hugues de Payens and other Inner Circle members of the Knights Templar made the presentation. The presentation generated the expected wondrous spiritual awakening and reaction, when a number of the truths and documents from The True Jesus were released by Hugues and the Knights Templar, to those gathered at the Council of Troyes.

There was such an immense amount of the electro-magnetic spiritual energies of Love & Light that emanated from the techniques, wisdom, information and artifacts released in their presentation that day, that European kings immediately began donating to the Knights Templar, vast holdings of land, while sons of royalty came from throughout the western world to join the Knights Templar.

Even though Knights Templar rules required that a knight donate all of their possessions to the Order of the Knights Templar, knights of royal birth came from all over Europe to become part of those "Who Knew".

In that one year of 1128, among other events, international status is given to the Knights Templar. St. Bernard became the official "Protector and Patron" of Rome to the Knights Templar. St. Bernard also began publicly working with the "Sacred Geometry of Solomon" to create the Gothic form of architecture used in building the great cathedrals of France.

After the Council meeting, Hugues de Payens travels to Scotland and meets with the Scottish King David. Suddenly after their meeting, large areas of land in Scotland are given to the Knights Templar and so it went throughout Europe in the year 1128.

This is the openness with which 12th century Europe embraced the Knights Templar and the techniques, wisdom and information which they brought forth to teach to those who were ready.

The Knights Templar organization consisted of three levels, or circles, of knights as follows:

1. The first level consisted of the publicly known Knights Templar who performed Templar duties throughout Europe and elsewhere in the world.
2. The second level was comprised of the lesser known Knights Templar who were responsible for teaching and maintaining the purity of the organization's spiritual techniques.
3. The third level of the Knights Templar was unknown to the public. The third level of knights were members of the legendary Inner Circle of the Knights Templar who safeguarded and used the priceless treasures from the Ark of the Covenant.

"Priceless Treasure" is an ancient term used to describe the benefits one receives from sacred teachings. Priceless Treasure refers to spiritual wealth. In this case, the term refers to the sacred teachings/techniques that had been carved into the Stones of the Covenant by Moses and others.

The Inner Circle of the Knights Templar, early in the 12th century, recovered the Ark of the Covenant that had been buried in 588 BC before Jerusalem was captured by Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonians. All knights who became members of the knighthood, known in the 12th, 13th and 14th centuries as the Knights Templar, were taught certain of the spiritual techniques carved upon the Stones, or Tablets, that were carried inside the Ark of the Covenant. As knights progressed in their spiritual abilities, they were taught ever higher levels of secret, spiritual techniques.
